The ORIGINAL gathering place for a merry band of Three Percenters. (As denounced by Bill Clinton on CNN!)

To all modern Sons of Liberty: THIS is your time. Break their windows. Break them NOW.

Sons of Liberty burn and sack the house of the Massachusetts lieutenant governor, Thomas Hutchinson.

To all free Americans who still hold dear the Founders' vision of a constitutional Republic and who wish to remain free --

Nancy Pelosi's Intolerable Act is within days of passage by devious means so corrupt and twisted that even members of her own party recoil in disgust.

This act will order all of us to play or pay, and if we do not wish to, we will be fined.

If we refuse to pay the fine out of principle, we will be jailed.

If we resist arrest, we will be killed.

They will send the Internal Revenue Service and other federal police to do this in thousands of small Wacos, if that is what it takes to force us to submit.

This arrogant elite pretends that this oppression is for our own good, while everyone else understands that this is about their selfish, insatiable appetite for control over our liberty, our money, our property and our lives.

The majority of the people have made it plain that they do not want this tyrannical transfer of power wrapped in soft lies.

It does not matter.

Pelosi and her ilk apparently do not understand that this Intolerable Act has some folks so angry that they are ready to resist their slow-rolling revolution against the Founders' Republic by force of arms. Why should they? For in the past seventy-five years of being pushed back continually from the free exercise of our God-given rights to life, liberty and property, WE HAVE NEVER SHOVED BACK. Rather, it was we, the law-abiding, who backed up each time, grumbling.

These are collectivists. They do not hear you grumble. They do not, it is apparent after the past year of town halls and Tea Parties and nose-diving opinion polls, hear you SHOUT. They certainly do not hear the soft "snik-snik" of cleaning rods being used on millions of rifle barrels in this

What Does It Mean To Be A "Three Percenter"?

Three Percent Catechism.

These four principles -- moral strength, physical readiness, no first use of force and no targeting of innocents -- are the hallmarks of the Three Percent ideal. Anyone who cannot accept them as a self-imposed discipline in the fight to restore the Founders' Republic should find something else to do and cease calling themselves a "Three Percenter."

Edmund Burke reconsidered in the light of 20th Century funeral pyres.

"Remember: Evil exists because good men don't kill the government officials committing it." -- Kurt Hofmann.

country by people who have decided that their backs are to the wall, politics and the courts no longer are sufficient to the task of defending their liberties, and they must make their own arrangements.

The Imperial Democrats do not care what you think. They will not hear you. They are every bit as arrogant and isolated as King George the Third was from the liberty-loving American colonists in 1775.

And yet, if we are to avoid civil war, we must get their attention BEFORE the IRS thug parties descend upon us each in turn -- when we will be forced into dozens of defensive slaughters and then, to end it, forced yet again to call Pelosi and the other architects of this war upon their own people to final account.

We are the law-abiding of this country, yes. We always have been. But when the "law" is distorted and twisted into an unconstitutional means of oppression, backed by the entire weight of the federal Leviathan, it is not "law" at all, but mere illegitimate force.

John Locke said it best:

"Whenever the legislators endeavor to take away and destroy the property of the people, or to reduce them to slavery under arbitrary power, they put themselves into a state of war with the people, who are thereupon absolved from any further obedience."

When the law becomes a deadly tool of tyranny, it is no longer a good thing to be obedient and "law-abiding." It is, in fact, suicidal.

Yet, given the federal mandarins' willful ignorance of our very existence and conviction that we have no opinions that they are bound to respect, is there anything that can be done to prevent civil war?

Yes, there is.

We can emulate the Sons of Liberty of old.

These windows are not far away from where you are reading this right now. In virtually every city and county in this land, there is a local headquarters of Pelosi's party -- the Democrat party. These headquarters invariably have windows. When the Sons of Liberty wanted to express their opposition to the actions of the King's ministers, they would gather in front of the homes and offices of his tax-collectors and government officials in Boston or New York and break their windows. Glass was expensive. The King's minions were often the most well-to-do. The Sons of Liberty hit them in their pocketbooks.

Most importantly, however, was the message to the royal functionaries that there are personal consequences for oppressing your fellow citizens. The King is far away, and you are here, among us, the people.

This is the message that modern Sons of Liberty should get across to the Royalists of today. Now. Before we have to resort to rifles to resist their "well intentioned" tyranny.

This is not to say that the GOP (I refuse to call them "Republicans" for that is a misuse of the word) does not bear a large measure of responsibility for the situation we find ourselves in today. However, they have opposed this Intolerable Act. Yet, if we do a thorough job of breaking Democrat windows, I am sure that the GOP will profit from the example.

So, if you wish to send a message that Pelosi and her party cannot fail to hear, break their windows.

Break them NOW.

Break them and run to break again. Break them under cover of night. Break them in broad daylight. Break them and await arrest in willful, principled civil disobedience. Break them with rocks. Break them with slingshots. Break them with baseball bats.

But BREAK THEM.

Passing it along.

Our Republic is facing a crisis the likes of which has not been seen since the Founding Fathers fought to free us from the tyranny of King George III. The time grows short. Before all out civil war breaks, we must give the tyrants in Washington something to think about.

least in the field of government, in a thousand years. I believe that it is better to be free than to be not free, even when the former is dangerous and the latter safe. I believe that the finest qualities of man can flourish only in free air - that progress made under the shadow of the policeman's club is false progress, and of no permanent value. I believe that any man who takes the liberty of another into his keeping is bound to become a tyrant, and that any man who yields up his liberty, in however slight the measure, is bound to become a slave. -- H.L. "We will not go gently . . ."

This is no small thing, to restore a republic after it has fallen into corruption. I have studied history for years and I cannot recall it ever happening. It may be that our task is impossible. Yet, if we do not try then how will we know it can't be done? And if we do not try, it most certainly won't be done. The Founders' Republic, and the larger war for western civilization, will be lost.

But I tell you this: We will not go gently into that bloody collectivist good night. Indeed, we will make with our defiance such a sound as ALL history from that day forward will be forced to note, even if they despise us in the writing of it.

And when we are gone, the scattered, free survivors hiding in the ruins of our once-great republic will sing of our deeds in forbidden songs, tending the flickering flame of individual liberty until it bursts forth again, as it must, generations later. We will live forever, like the Spartans at Thermopylae, in sacred memory.

If we let them drive us to violence, they've won. That's exactly what they want, exactly what they say about us. We've got to hit them in a way that really hurts - we have to impeach them. Various groups are drawing up articles of impeachment. We must also vote in a conservative House and conservative senators in Nov. who will not only impeach but who will dismantle all the unconstitutional laws on te books and get rid of the bloated govt.

Violence only plays into the LEftist's hands - it gives them an excuse to use repressive actions, like martial law. That's exactly what they want - don't give it to them.

Drusilla -- Quite honestly, I'm tired of hearing that argument.

It's like the rapist who says he is going to have his way with you regardless if he has your consent or not. You do not have a choice in the matter, for you are going to be victimized by him one way or another. Some would say, don't fight because rapists are actually wanting to control you and they enjoy it when you resist.

He wins even if you fight so give in and let him have his way, right? I don't think so!

You have a chance of not being a victim ONLY if you fight with such passion that he cannot control you. There is a small chance you might still be a victim in the end, but you'll hurt him in the process too. If you are totally successful he will never try to victimize anyone else ever again.

Obama knows most Americans will submit because they will choose peace over war any day. He is counting on any resistance to be small enough to contain as if we were a pesky gnat invading his picnic. He hasn't counted on the uprising being too great to contain and that is his weakness. We need to be like a Grizzly which invades a picnic and sends everyone running for their lives.

You don't know who you're messing with, here. They consider ourselves our rulers. They'll be nice as long as we're nice: the moment we're not, they'll simply become harsher rulers.

They consider themselves our rulers. They have access to a military more powerful than any in human history. No modern freedom movement can possibly win against it. If you think you can, you haven't been paying attention for the last century.

In the end, all you have to do for this to end is ... nothing.

Just continue to use black and gray markets rather than those regulated by government. Pay just enough of your taxes to stay off the radar -- and out of jail. Continue preparing yourselves for the ultimate bankruptcy and collapse of the Federal Government, because it's coming. Soon.

Don't throw rocks, don't shoot guns, and don't do anything but sit at home where you're safe. The Federal Government is bankrupt and will not be able to pay for extravagances like health care for very long.

It's long past the point of no return: any fool can recognize an asymptotic curve, and that's what both Federal spending and the public debt have become.

There's no way out but economic collapse. It's coming. Just be prepared and stay out of any fights that might put you in jail during it.

Sit tight. It won't be long, now.

MVB, et al.,

Awhile back a govt agency weapons procurement list was published on this site & caused quite a bit of speculation about how said weapons would be used. An item by Michael Geer dated 16 March on the American Thinker blog may give some clue about the intent of the Imperium should Obamacare be enacted. See it here:

http://www.americanthinker.com/blog/2010/03/obamacares\_new\_public\_health\_w.html

And if that doesn't work for some reason, go to the American Thinker site, then go to the bottom of the American Thinker Blog column & click More Blog Entries, scroll down to the March 16 entries & look for the one entitled ObamaCare's New Public Health Workforce Corps.

I agree w/ Drusilla & Oleg's point that rock throwing will be used as a pretext for "justified" LE action from the Imperium, I also agree w/ CA's strictly hypothetical use of a septic truck as a means to protest. And that caused me to recall that the S.D.S. did something similar when they took over a building during the 1968 "Days of Rage" riots in Chicago but used balloons filled w/ slop jar contents on the cops arrayed below them. From what I've read, the method worked well & w/ the addition of an explanation written on the balloon such a means might be ideal for getting a point across. And besides, you KNOW how the Left HATES having THEIR ideas used against THEM!

To William Stone III:

I can only quote Patrick Henry in response to your comments.

"They tell us, sir, that we are weak; unable to cope with so formidable an adversary. But when shall we be stronger? Will it be the next week, or the next year? Will it be when we are totally disarmed, and when a British guard shall be stationed in every house? Shall we gather strength by irresolution and inaction? Shall we acquire the means of effectual resistance by lying supinely on our backs and hugging the delusive phantom of hope, until our enemies shall have bound us hand and foot? Sir, we are not weak if we make a proper use of those means which the God of nature hath placed in our power. The millions of people, armed in the holy cause of liberty, and in such a country as that which we possess, are invincible by any force which our enemy can send against us. Besides, sir, we shall not fight our battles alone. There is a just God who presides over the destinies of nations, and who will raise up friends to fight our battles for us. The battle, sir, is not to the strong alone; it is to the vigilant, the active, the brave. Besides, sir, we have no election. If we were base enough to desire it, it is now too late to retire from the contest. There is no retreat but in submission and slavery! Our chains are forged! Their clanking may be heard on the plains of Boston! The war is inevitable--and let it come! I repeat it, sir, let it come.

It is in vain, sir, to extenuate the matter. Gentlemen may cry, Peace, Peace--but there is no peace. The war is actually begun! The next gale that sweeps from the north will bring to our ears the clash of resounding arms! Our brethren are already in the field! Why stand we here idle? What is it that gentlemen wish? What would they have? Is life so dear, or peace so sweet, as to be purchased at the price of chains and slavery? Forbid it, Almighty God! I know not what course others may take; but as for me, give me liberty or give me

Re: Patrick Henry

Noble words that do not bear much scrutiny in terms of modern America.

Henry lived at a time when a vast ocean separated North America from the rest of civilization. If it hadn't, there would have been no Revolution: simply a rebellion, put down quickly.

There is no ocean separating the governed from the government. Soldiers who can be nationalized at any time are stationed in every state: we call them the National Guard.

The weapons and materiele available to the government aren't single-shot muskets but the latest, most advanced weapons technology ever created.

The weapons available to the governed are (at best) semi-automatic rifles. Further, the overwhelming majority of the governed -- particular in America's metropoli -- do not own a weapon beyond kitchen utensils.

If you attempt to take on the Federal Government with anything like force, you will lose, pure and simple. Anyone who believes otherwise will go to an early grave -- and that won't be me, as I have constructive things to do post-fall of the Federal Government.

As to what will happen post-fall, I have no idea. I can tell you that anyone who thinks there will be an enforceable Martial Law simply hasn't thought it through.

Where do bullets come from? Manufacturers.

How does the Federal Government get bullets? They buy them.

What, then, will the Federal Government use to buy bullets when the money runs out?

"bailout"

"Things will start to get better when the last indignant buggy-whip maker is strangled with the entrails of the last commissar." - Billy Beck, 8 December 2008

By "run out" what I mean is that the coffers are empty: no government nor private individual will purchase worthless government paper (be it Treasury notes, government securities, or plain old currency).

Where will the government get the bullets then? No doubt they'll use what bullets they have to seize ammunitions manufacturers, but they don't have the manpower to seize enough of them to matter. Most of that manpower is overseas, in any case.

(As a side note, I feel very sorry for servicemen who will run out of bullets while stationed overseas. Most will die; those who live will have to live on the run or in hiding. They don't have a rosy future.)

In short, the fall of the Federal Government will be its fall.

Oh, there may still be something around that calls itself the Federal Government, but without money, it can make all the laws and proclamations it likes. The reality is that without money to feed the Beast, the Beast will die.

You just have to remember the terms we're talking about. It won't be a Federal Government that has even the ability to protect its citizens from invasion, let alone push them around.

Think in those terms. Protect yourself -- both physically and financially via precious metals.

Then get the hell out of the way. The Beast is going to die, but it will kill a lot of people in the process. Get as far away from it as you can.

I tend to side with those who say "not yet". This is going to be an historic weekend, but it's not the end of the Republic if it passes or its salvation if it fails. If this monstrosity goes through, the lawsuits will be filed next week, and will take years to be decided. Chances are the country will collapse before anything happens.

In the meantime, I find comfort in a fact I believe I read here several months ago: in 2008 (last numbers available) there were 14 Million deer hunting licenses issued in this country. That means there are 14,000,000 people with high power rifles, skilled at hiding in the woods and stalking wary, wild animals. That number happens to be more than the size of the 10 largest armies in the world combined. And that doesn't include the other millions of gun owners who didn't get a deer license, but prefer duck hunting, turkey hunting, or other forms of hunting.

Now multiply that number of people by the radius a single rifle can cover.

It's my only hope of sleeping at night.

United States Marine Corps Retired
AMERICAN CITIZEN BY BIRTH, UNITED STATES MARINE BY CHOICE!

March 20, 2010 at 9:56 AM

Unknown said...

@Sgt Pinkstaff:

I only have one question:

If so ordered, do you believe your fellows in the USMC would hesitate for a moment to fire on fellow citizens -- if so lawfully ordered following the chain of command?

Let's even postulate that enough citizens had banded together an army capable of at least shooting back at trained, skilled professional Marines. Let's make it a band of freedom-fighters come to drag their Congressman or Senator off to chains.

Your orders: prevent it using whatever force is necessary.

I cannot imagine that a Marine would do anything less than unhesitatingly follow orders. After all, the freedom-fighters in question have no legal authority and are actively working to subvert the government.

If Marines will fire on their own countrymen in such a situation, I rest my case.

Wait until they can't feed the Marines any more and they're forced to desert or starve. It won't be long, now.

A couple of notes for William Stone III:

1. A significant portion of that undefeatable Army will most likely join with the citizen resistance.
2. If they're so undefeatable and mighty, why has it taken over 8 years to still not defeat the insurgency in Iraq. No, that insurgency has not been defeated.

See what happens when US troops fully withdraw from Iraq.

Frankly, the US Military is NOT our enemy. The Legislative and Executive Branches of the now illegitimate (no longer have consent of the governed) Federal Government is our enemy. The leadership of those two rogue elements of tyranny should be our specific targets - not their families - THEM PERSONALLY.

Read "Unintended Consequences" by John Ross. No need to jeopardize innocents with firefights in the streets (unless they come for us then kill as many as you can. The fact is that if all of us only kill one illegitimate government agent, we will win soundly in the end). But, don't stop at one if you can get more!

I think it's still too early to resort to armed rebellion. We still have our state legislatures we can pressure to pass legislation nullifying the Federal HC mandate. State Attorney Generals can file lawsuits to stop implementation until final disposition in the courts.

Oh and by the way, the US Supreme Court is NOT the final arbiter of the interpretation of OUR (the people's) Constitution. We the people are!

Funny thing--I been looking all around for news of all the bricks going through windows, tossed by the Sons of Freedom running their mouths on blogs like this one. And I haven't found anything but the one story already mentioned here. So I think you're gonna have to downgrade your numbers *again* fellas. From 3% of those who own guns (maybe a quarter of the population), down to some tiny, tiny proportion of that 3% of 25% who are even willing to throw bricks through windows, much less take up arms in 'revolution' against an elected government.

You guys are so far from the possibility of civil war that you can't even get there by plane.

If you break off the porcelain from an old spark plug and smash it into little pieces about the size of a pea it will break a tempered glass window when flicked like a cigarette. It does not work every time as one of the sharp edges needs to hit the glass. It may take a few tries but it is very quiet. If you don't believe this feel free to try it to your cars side window.

I am only sharing this as an interesting little bit of trivia, I in no way condone vandalism.

I don't have a Honey Truck, nor do I have a Farm Truck load of manure to dump on a Bank, but I do have CONSTIPATION. Works every time it's tried. Simply cut the top off a 2 liter pop bottle, leaving a hole about 3 inches across. Fill the 2 liter bottle with DRY ready-mix concrete powder. Go to the target's property where the outside sewer clean-out plug is located, unscrew the plug and dump the dry concrete powder down the pipe. Just a few flushings by the target and the concrete will set up nicely. Nothing like an overflowing toilet to get someone's attention. One target took no more than 10 seconds to dump 2 bottles down the chute and it took all of 4 weeks before they got the plumbers to find the problem but by then they were out of business.

If you've read The Moon Is A Harsh Mistress by Robert A. Heinlein, there's an analogue to me as a character in the book: Mannie Davis.

If you can come up with a plan that gives even odds of success, I'll consider it.

Facing down tanks, fighter jets, bombers, and nuclear weapons armed only with a semi-automatic rifle and improvised explosives does not have a 50% chance of success.

It has a 100% chance of failure.

Come up with a plan that can succeed and I'll consider putting my life on the line to implement it. I will emphatically not sign on to anything that will absolutely fail.

When the Legislature no longer represents the will of the people, a state of tyranny exists. We therefore have the right to censure Congress and ignore the laws that proceed from it, until we can replace it by vote, or by violence if necessary - and repeal any offending laws which do not conform to the will of the people. Those who would perpetrate such an act against the American people are traitors to the Revolution, should be branded as such, and tried for high treason.

I don't pretend to know where that point is for you....and judging by your comments, apparently you don't know either.

Sean:

We are all slaves to our rulers in Washington. We're living as slaves right now.

Hail, fellow slave, well met!

This being the case, the question is never, "Am I willing to live as a slave?" If you're alive to see this message, you've chosen to live as a slave.

Period.

If you don't like living as a slave, you have two options:

1. Kill yourself.
2. Find a way to throw off your chains.

Attacking a force that massively out-guns you falls into category 1. It will never, ever fall into category 2.

If you want to kill yourself, thereby ending any possibility of throwing off your chains, feel free. It's your life, and I won't begrudge you the right to end it if you like.

I won't be doing so, as I have not only my life but that of my progeny to think of. While I could easily kill myself, it won't help get the chains off my children - and by extension, my grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

It's a question of strategy and tactics. If I want to be around to help my progeny get rid of their chains, then it is illogical in the extreme to throw my life away on strategies and tactics that cannot possibly succeed.

Give me strategies and tactics that has some chance of success and I'll consider it. I will not entertain strategies and tactics that can only lead to defeat.

For myself, I've no strategies and tactics left to offer except for the ones I employ personally. They probably don't scale, and in any event, to reveal what little I do would be to compromise those same strategies and tactics.

Bottom line: nothing being suggested here can succeed, therefore unless you're simply hoping for death, it's pointless to engage in them.

I'm hearing what William has to say...

He's right. I'm a slave....every single one of us is.

None of us can deny it. Most of us (I'd wager) weren't alive when the NFA was enacted. I wasn't alive for the 68 Gun Control fiasco...and that's just one issue. What about the Federal Reserve Act, or Patriot or any number of other court decisions or proclamations of "law" by our legislature or unlawful executive orders?

No, William's right. We're not really free. We haven't been (as a country) for quite some time.

However, what William AGAIN fails to understand (or misses in his reading comprehension) is that I clearly stated in my last reply that, "What you fail to grasp is success or failure will not matter at some point." and "I don't pretend to know where that point is for you".

What that means is that every one of us have a line in the sand. One that will not be crossed before you fight....regardless of the outcome. Win or lose.

If a bigger, stronger, better armed man than yourself (a man you KNOW you cannot beat and will take your life if you try) attacks your wife or children, I am *guessing* you would fight him. Maybe I'm wrong....maybe you would meter out your response in a very rational manner and decide that your wife's virtue or your children's lives cannot be served any better by your death....after all, she'll still be raped and they'll still be dead. I'm not going to pretend I know you or know what you'd do in that situation. In truth, I'm not going to pretend that I KNOW I'd fight him either, knowing that my certain death would be the outcome....but I pray to God that I would find the strength to do what was right in my mind.

Do you think the founders fought the biggest, most powerful military in the world at the drop of a hat? Clearly they did not. They tried every means available to get relief....and then some. I'm not advocating we do any less....but as Mike points out, if you refuse to bow to their will, if you refuse to be arrested for not paying the tax, you WILL be killed.

I will not publicly announce any plans to do anything. I have a line that will not be crossed without consequences. That's all I'll say about it.

I suggest you look for your own strategy (and find out just what it means to you to be free)....we are all still free to make our own decisions within that context.

In the end, whether I live or die makes no real difference in the grand scheme of things....we all die eventually.

As Defender once said on this blog, "I too pray for peace and justice. If I can't have peace, I choose justice."

I couldn't agree more.

Sigh.

Fine, then. Go break windows, go get your pop guns to arm your "massive irregular force" that does not exist.

If you're intent upon a self-destructive course of action, there's probably nothing that anyone can do about it.

I frankly couldn't care less what anyone believes. You're all just words on a screen to me: in all likelihood, that's all you'll ever be.

However, to any charges of cowardice, I would offer the following:

If you believe that not taking on tanks with hunting rifles is cowardice, then yes, I'm a coward.

If you believe that not going to jail for tilting at windmills is cowardice, then yes, I'm a coward.

If you think people who point out what should be obvious facts is cowardice, then yes, I'm a coward.

We'll see which of us is here to work on getting rid of our chains after the tanks are done with you. Or if you're ever let out of whatever Federal hell-hole where you've become some inmate's bitch.

One final point:

Anyone reading this can find me in seconds. Just Google "William Stone III" or "William Stone, III" and you can get my address if you want.

I note that at least half the posters are doing so anonymously. I would question whether an individual so worried about identification on a frakking blog has the intestinal fortitude to even serve in an army, irregular or not.

Look at it this way: if you're not even willing to risk opening yourself to simple criticism, what makes you think that you'd be any use if I found myself back-to-back with you in a fight? You'd probably fold in a heartbeat, when you discovered the horrific reality that is war.

The Mar 19/12:28pm comment by William Stone III is, to a point, correct, & that point is pgh 5 "They consider ourselves (typo) our rulers". I assume he meant themselves, & he's obviously right that the reigning Leftists do see things that way, but the rest of that paragraph is @ best an assumption that an Imperium will behave rationally when facing determined resistance to its edicts from large portions of the population & (if elections aren't "temporarily delayed" due to a "national crisis") the prospect of losing power. Paragraph 6 also assumes that info control will prevail & that the overwhelming majority of those tasked w/ suppressing "civil unrest" or responding to "domestic terrorist" "attacks" will nod their heads, say "Yes Sir!", & carry out any & all orders given despite misgivings about/dislike of said orders just like Lt. Calley's crew did @ My Lai. While the assaults on Pine Ridge & the Branch Davidians involved some elements of our military, it's not as sure a thing as WS III believes that local/state/Fed troops will conduct widespread Fallujah-style clearing ops in the U.S. for the simple reason that doing unto others in a foreign country is one thing, but doing so in your own country to people just like yours is quite another. Unlike apparently many others, however, I'm sure that some Marine, Army, & Navy units, & especially most of Delta Force, wouldn't have a problem being the American version of the S.S., & that some could even be found who'd happily fulfill the role of domestic Einsatzgruppen. But they would be the exception & as word of their activities got out, & it would get out one way or another, the troops assigned to other sections of the country would begin wondering if their people back home were being treated like they'd been doing to civilians in their AO, (Rousted, beaten, sometimes shot for 'resisting arrest', & even 'disappeared') & if they got confirmation that such was indeed the case, the problems of desertion, outright group refusal to obey such orders, & fratricide of those who tried to force 'refuseniks' to continue either by threat of arrest/detention by 'special units' (which inevitably leads to 'disappearance') or summary courts martial & on-site/off-site execution would begin to mount rapidly.

The Nazis occasionally engaged in such cannibalistic acts during W.W.2 & as the Wehrmacht experienced repeated defeats the instances of such acts increased, but even then they weren't the norm regardless of whether one was in the regular forces, the Fallschirmjager, or even the S.S. In the Red Army, however, it WAS the norm & one reason for the RA's ferocity. There's nothing that'll get you to follow democidal orders like knowing that if you don't, not only you but maybe your entire platoon, family, neighbors, & possibly even your whole block or village will be killed, but I'm not @ all as confident as WS III appears to be that the American military has descended to that state.....yet. It appears much more likely to me that "authorized" irregular forces like those in Rwanda/Burundi, Mugabe's Zimbabwe, Mandela's South Africa, Saddam's Iraq, Milosevic's Serbia, Guatemala, Honduras, El Salvador, Somoza & then Ortega's Nicaragua, Castro's Cuba, & the various factions of the I.R.A. would be better suited for that kind of duty here, & the precedent for such units is Quantrill's Raiders & the breakaway group led by "Bloody Bill" Anderson. Given Emperor Obama's announcement of the intended formation of various officially recognized but non-govtl "volunteer" groups commonly labeled "Obamacorps" & the political/racial orientation of same, if the pattern seen previously in this country & elsewhere is repeated it's reasonably certain that such sanctioned groups (possibly w/ govt intel/security support) will be used more than military units whose political "reliability" may be questionable @ the outset or erode over time. "True believers" have historically proven to be better motivated (& more plausibly deniable) butchers than conventional forces, & there's no reason to assume that when the Imperium decides that it's time to shove back HARD against its opponents that such "govt issue thugs" won't be used to maximum effect.

Paragraph 7 & those following are but continuations of the assumption in the 2d half of pgh 5 & constitute an implausible & perhaps ahistoric view of how a quasi-religious regime like Emperor Obama's will behave when a systemic collapse occurs, & others observations that said regime won't allow one to simply remain outside of its influence as it's dying but will instead hew more toward the historic model of the 3d Reich & the Soviet Union & actively pursue its opponents even in its death throes, IMO, makes more sense. OTOH, WS III's admonition against "going active" prematurely is sound counsel & everyone will have to decide when they've reached their "Popeye threshold" & open the spinach can. But if the Imperium's arrogant desperation & the crazed juvenility of its disciples keeps increasing & thus goads the Imperium into impetuosity & capriciousness, WS III's "wait & see" attitude may be proper. What'll actually happen should things start going irretrievably & (more important) undeniably bad for the Imperium & its acolytes is unknown but given the mentality displayed by both the safest bet to me is to follow the Roman adage of Si Vis Pacem, Para Bellum just in case economic catastrophe doesn't arrive in time to prevent govtl insanity. An unequivocally pro-2A decision of the McDonald case or Moody's reduction of America's credit rating from AAA to blech are the obvious ones likely to set things off, but one floating around like an anti-matter asteroid that could be as devastating as the first 2 is the implementation of the recent EO land grab. If the loss of jobs & state & private property rights & income are as predicted, things will go BOOM pretty damned fast, the Imperium will have to react, & that reaction will tell the tale.

William Stone III to Patrick Henry/March 19-3:55pm,

You're right until the 2d sentence of paragraph 3 where you imply that all Natl Guard units will obey Imperium orders to turn on the citizenry. While I realize that American milpers aren't exempt from history, your assumption that the NG will be unable to resist the pack/herd mentality & that their training will override their upbringing sounds too general to be reasonable. Paragraph 5 is also problematic in that you assume the weapons known to the Imperium are all that the population has/can get. Recent LE experiences w/ various gangs has shown that assumption to be ill-advised & the arms bazaar that's just over the southern U.S. border can & likely would be used to funnel milgrade hardware to non-criminal/non-LE/non-terrorist end-users & that's assuming such hasn't already occurred & isn't still going on. As w/ concealed carry, the appearance isn't always reality, & the people now selling SMGs, REAL assault rifles, L/HMGs, grenades, mines, milgrade explosives, AT & AA systems, body armor, night & thermal vision gear, & good-excellent secure comms would have no problem w/ shifting to a new (& MUCH safer) customer base who'll likely have things that'll be VERY valuable to those who don't want to be stuck in a Mexico that's dropped 9 levels below the worst that could be expected in a devastated America. Even the Mad Max crazies would balk @ that kind of chaos.

I think this would make a statement - but I think throwing rocks or bricks thru their windows with a "III" scribed on them would make a more emphatic statement.

Of course, it will probably be prosecuted as a felony crime - maybe even a (oh, horror of horrors!) "Hate Crime (tm)".

If you review paragraphs 7-12, you'll see that they simultaneously make my point & refute the contentions you made previously. Another thing contained in pghs 7-12, & one I'm surprised nobody remarked on, is your repetitious use of the term "bullets" for ammunition/ammo, & later use of the word "ammunitions". For someone trying to appear authoritative on the topic @ hand, it's puzzling that you'd let such glaring mistakes slide by.

(I also share your opinion of the plight of our overseas ground combat forces. Those on the Arabian peninsula who can be ferried to ships or get to Israel [assuming it's still there & the Israelis will let them in] will be the lucky ones, the rest will likely end up like the mercs back in the 60s who were stranded in the Congo. Blackhawk Down was merciful by comparison, some of those mercs went into stewpots! The fate of diplomatic & construction personnel will be even grimmer than the milpers because they're largely unarmed. Those in Europe have a better chance of getting home due to the number of major USAF/USN bases, but even that's problematic & as before, dips, builders, & their dependents will likely be last to get miltrans if @ all, & the people deployed in/assigned to Oriental Asia will be a bit more fortunate than those in the Islamic areas but not by much. Milpers, dips, builders, & their dependents in the Pacific AO will be mainly reliant on air & sea miltrans, & more than a few in the remote bases may be evaced by sub. Hell, a LOT will split that way because of their nuke power plants. Makes me glad I'm CONUS!)

Paragraphs 15 & 16 are likely, & make the case for regional govts not allied w/ the imperium/its successor which would be crucial for maintaining some of what was the U.S.A. & may provide the platform for its future restoration. Hardware & hard cash are always good things to have, but the hardware's what'll matter down the road because gold, gems, Ming china, & Rembrandts are called luxuries for a reason & when things get tight they lose value fast. That doesn't mean that such items shouldn't be preserved, they should, but most won't bother w/ them after awhile.

It's fun to read about you guys sh*tting your britches over health care reform. HEALTH CARE. Hilarious.

It's even more hilarious to read all your proposed "solutions" to the situation, which seem to involve making yourselves into the most unsympathetic bunch of Taliban-wannabes imaginable. Sure, go ahead, good luck with that. Throw some bricks through windows, yeah, that'll bring people around to your point of view. That'll bring down the government too! It sure worked for Earth First! and the Animal Liberation Front, doncha know.

You spend so much time convincing yourselves of your own brain-retarding propaganda that you have completely lost touch with any semblance of reality. How do you think Democrats have won national-level elections so handily the past couple cycles? It's largely because GOP pols have gone insane. Dems are rarely all that inspiring frankly, but when your choice is someone who talks like a loony-tune, and someone else who at least seems to have a grasp of reality, the choice is clear.

And don't try convincing me, or even yourselves, that I'm wrong. If you believe in democracy like you claim to, you need to win some hearts and minds of the electorate at large, and you simply are not going to do that with your grotesque historical misunderstandings and bombastic self-aggrandizing, terroristic rhetoric.

But that's OK. You don't have to believe me. Just keep it up, you'll just drag down the GOP even further, and strengthen the Democrats' hold on power, and legitimately so. Heck, we may finally get that public option if you keep up your threatening postures. Nobody likes a bully.

That has done more to restrict Freedom and Liberty than giving those less fortunate access to healthcare. Further, everyone speaks of In God We Trust, and everything Jesus, but then rail against the very ideals that Jesus was trying to teach, helping those less fortunate.

Samuel Adams,

While I approve of using graffiti for protest, I agree w/ Black Ice's point about the swastika being so poisonous & so easily exploitable that even its justified use is counter-productive unless, that is, the user is part of a Leftist org, & in that case it'll be portrayed as "legitimate protest" &/or "protected free speech". Unfair, yes, but that's the way it is like it or don't. However, there's another symbol that can be used, one that the Imperium would have a hard time co-opting because of its easily proved historic pro-freedom meaning & one that also will be familiar to millions of people of widely varying ages. What is this symbol, you ask? It's the one Churchill used to signify Britain's stubborn determination to not only resist tyranny but to defeat it as well, & it was also used in a 1983 mini-series & its 2009 iteration. A scene @ the end of part one of the 83 mini-series is most likely to be remembered, & shows an elderly Holocaust survivor instructing some kids on how to properly deface the tyrant's property. He takes the hand of the kid w/ the spray paint can, sprays a large red V over a propaganda poster, says to the kid "Do you understand? For Victory", & when the kid nods yes says "Go then, tell your friends". Devastating. Still brings tears of sorrowful fury every time I think about/see it, & had/still has that effect on just about everyone I've met who saw it. The Imperium could try to discredit such a method by claiming it's from the movie "V for Vendetta" & is a terrorist threat, but that angle can easily be thwarted by adding A. Bernstein below the letter & then spreading the word. Using pop culture as a political weapon against the Left, deliciously & infuriatingly ironic, isn't it?

3. The property destruction against MA-Bay Gov. Hutchinson was based upon LIES from the person who formed the "Sons of Liberty" in order to conduct politically-motivated violence against his perceived enemies: Samuel Adams.

perhaps the best idea so far is not to throw the rocks and break windows but to lay down the items we would have used to break the windows down in front of the buildings. this way no act of vandalism has occurred. it is peaceful and it gives the same message. the media cannot twist this into their own awful agenda of hoolaginism when it was peaceful protesting that was done. i recommend to all that we stand up and take back our rights and freedoms but do it in such a way that our message cannot be lost. do not break the windows but write on the breaking items messages and then lay them down in front of the offices, windows, and doors, of the democratic party so that they hear us loud and clear.

"Patriot" put it perfectly... We need something more symbolic. This will be portrayed as a toddler throwing a temper-tantrum. A little boy, whose mommy tells him to do something he doesn't want to do, gets mad and throws a toy across the room. Tell me how this is different, please, or how people could possibly view it as anything dissimilar. I'm dying to hear the logic. The more violent and radical action we take, the more it makes people question our sanity rather than consider our views. PLEASE PLEASE PLEASE consider what I'm saying. We are more in need of numbers now than ever before, and democrats are starting to question the motives and logic of their all-powerful savior. If we act with such deliberate violence, they won't hear us. All they will see are the "crazy conservatives throwing another fit" as one of my liberal friends put it. I'm not saying we should march down the street singing "We Shall Overcome", but isn't there something reasonable and mature about the peaceful protest idea? You want people to hear you? Speak up. Be well-versed in history and what it is you're speaking out against rather than just quoting a news show. Send letter after letter, make phone call after phone call. Make yourself heard, not feared. If you're trying to incite a civil war, it could possibly work. But the Civil War was north and south...this would be brother-on-brother, father-on-son in a way you cannot possibly imagine. I truly don't believe it has to come to that. Please consider what I've said... This country needs to band together against tyranny. The last thing we need is to intimidate those away who could be our allies. Just something to consider. You can attack me all you wish, tell me why I'm wrong...but I, like you, stand firmly in my beliefs.

The Dunning-Kruger effect...

The phenomenon wherein people reach erroneous conclusions and make unfortunate choices, but their incompetence robs them of the ability to realize it.

The theory states that...

1. Incompetent individuals tend to overestimate their own level of skill.
2. Incompetent individuals fail to recognize genuine skill in others.
3. Incompetent individuals fail to recognize the extremity of their inadequacy.
4. If they can be trained to substantially improve their own skill level, these individuals can recognize and acknowledge their own previous lack of skill.

I see you have gotten a gazillion comments already. I agree with a few of the points you make on your blog regarding the encroaching "big brother-ism" of the federal (and state) governments in our good nation. However, I must ask if your call for a violent overthrow of the entire Government of the U.S.A. is warranted over a package of health care reforms that mostly targets the huge, monopolistic insurance companies that already make "totalitarian" decisions regarding their customer's health care options and actually increases "socialism" only in so far that it opens a medicare buy-in for those making less than 133% of the poverty level. That's hardly a huge communist type takeover of the health care industry; it is 95% aq regulatory bill aimed at the most exploitative and unethical practices of the insurance industry. I would highly suggest that you reconsider your violence/revolution/civil war rhetoric and realize think about the fact that had the insurance industry not been so mercenary in their practices and philosophy this bill probably never would have passed in the first place. As much as I can understand many of your libertarian and anti oppression stances that you take up in your blog I still maintain that corporations are not citizens and as such they do not qualify for the constitutional protections that actual individual U.S. citizens enjoy per our founding fathers. thank you for your time and for your opinions. This is the first anonymous comment I've ever left in my life. Guess why I've decided to do so here? Because I'm about to argue w/ people who are advocating violence against elected officials and their families. Nice, nice stuff. For any of you who think this is a good idea, and call yourselves Christians, too... let's recall what Our Lord said about "casting stones."

I grew up in Massachusetts and was weaned on stories of our Forefathers. Year after year we'd go downtown and walk the Freedom Trail, visit Bunker Hill and Bred's Hill, go to the Old North Church, the USS Constitution and other historic sites. We reenacted John Adams's defense of the British Soldiers from the Boston Massacre, since our teacher wanted us to understand what a great example of American values that was: a man who so believed in the rule of law and rights of men that he defended those he vehemently disagreed with, even when threatened by his friends and neighbors.

The idea that you are comparing what you're doing to men like Adams, Jefferson and Washington sickens me. It cheapens their memory and paints you as unclear about the facts of our country's proud heritage.

The early Patriots were fighting against taxation without representation. They were fighting against a government that did not give them a say in its management. Guess what? You have the right to vote. So do I, so does every other American citizen. We vote for local, state and federal representatives. What part of that don't you get? People voted George W. Bush into office. For eight years, there were no Democrats calling for broken windows because of disagreements with GWB. Why? Because we understand that THAT'S THE WAY THAT DEMOCRACY WORKS.

What is it with you guys? Did my vote somehow not count? Because we disagree? I will fight to the death to preserve your right to vote... but apparently you want to fight to take away mine!

If you don't like the current system, organize like-minded people and vote the bums out. But the system we have -- which is the same one our Forefathers fought to establish and defend -- is the one that put Obama and Pelosi into office.

So either buck up and live with the fact that, this time, there's a (D) in the Oval Office, or shut up about violence against elected officials and their offices.

The Founding Fathers fought to bring us the system we've got; they didn't fight just for the sake of it.

Peace be to us all.

To the anonymous one who said...

But the system we have -- which is the same one our Forefathers fought to establish and defend -- is the one that put Obama and Pelosi into office

While your statements on the surface seem valid there is a major flaw in your logic. One that has not been mentioned in any of these comments, and may not even be known to many of the people leaving messages here.

WE DO NOT HAVE THE SAME SYSTEM THAT OUR FOREFATHERS HAD, AND THE RULE OF LAW HAS BEEN USURPED IN THIS NATION.

What do I mean? Its simple. I will show you 2 things that are completely provable facts. Not conspiracy's, but provable with very little effort on anyone's part.

1- The Constitution makes B.O. not eligible to hold the POSTUS position for 2 reasons(and neither have anything to do with where he was born.) Which means the voting process, has failed, as the FBI,etc have not upheld the highest law of the land.

1-- His father was a citizen of another country. This alone makes him not eligible to be President. A natural born citizen is one who has both parents born in this nation. (The founders did this to prevent a person from having a foreign allegiance if elected to POTUS.)

2-- He was required to become a citizen of Indonesia while living abroad, as the school would not allow foreigners attend. Then when returning to the US he would then have to be naturalized. This also makes him ineligible to be the POTUS. <http://www.dailypaul.com/node/130029#comment-1391549>

2 The second reason your argument is flawed, is our current voting system. Electronic voting, with no paper trail,and easily hacked voting machines, means massive fraud can be done w/o any or very little over sight. Don't believe me? go here and read.>> [www.vote fraud.org/](http://www.vote fraud.org/)

Now, without your argument, there is very little if anything at all that the Founders would be against when it comes to violence at this time..

(The only thing I would add, is instead of just breaking windows, find/locate and destroy those damn voting machines that are robbing us of honest elections!!) Mike, I hope you read this... THIS TYPE OF CALL TO ACTION WOULD SERIOUSLY CREATE SOME WAVES...

Being a long time human rights worker (SNCC), and one of those people who actually stood the line as the police advanced against us back in the Civil Rights era, I have a few words to share. Please read:

More people are in prisons in this nation than in any other nation in the world. More people are now in prison for harmless acts (such as marijuana possession) than are people who are actually violent. We are not a nation of criminals. We have become a nation with an evil government.

As children, we learned about the evil kings who took the grain of the farmers. We recognized this as an evil. Not kings, but politicians, are stealing our grain these days.

Politics don't matter any more: if we are not first humans, then we are missing the big picture.

I do not advocate tossing bricks, but even less, I advocate a government is allowed to initiate force against and hold in captivity harmless people with impunity.

Advocating the initiation of violence against anyone, whether against a politician or a tax protester who merely wants to keep the grain he has grown, is an ethical wrong.

I see so many posts of hatred here. Learn to tend to yourself, help all you can those in need, and be self-responsible enough to be able to defend yourself should the need arise. Live in peace. Avoid government as much as possible, Live simply. Spread peace instead of hate.

For those who defend and advocate government's initiation of force against innocents and harmless people, examine your motives. Politicians who issue orders that are backed by the initiation of force against innocent people need to be shunned, at the very least.

Do not be blind to the evil that this government has become, not only an evil in our own country, but around the Earth. This began long ago, not recently, by the way. Those in power like power, and they abuse it. Power is addictive.

Examine your motives: are you one who wishes to tell others what to do with their grain, and are you willing that some should be allowed to steal it so your ideas can be served?

Or are you one who will be self-responsible and live in peace?

We have not had the government of our founders since the Bill of Rights had to be parlayed in to a flawed document as a bit of hoped-for protection.

Those of you who have not learned the contradiction of defending government while advocating government's initiation of force against harmless humans need to go study history.

If the worst thing people do is toss bricks, rather than those things done by government agents, then I am not so worried about brick tossers as those who think stealing the grain of workers is all right if it is for "a good cause."

Listen to yourselves, those who condemn brick throwing, and defend government predations against humans. You are defending a great evil. If you think government theft is all right as long as it satisfies your agenda, you are ethically mistaken.

Use reason, and consider why you defend a government that kills innocents around the Earth, and imprisons millions at home.

There are other options to organize a peaceful, productive society that do not involve a government predicated on the initiation of force against the grain-growers.

Bricks tossed at buildings are the least of your worries: government agents are murdering and imprisoning innocents.

Where are your priorities?

Thank you for reading and considering these words.

I don't think there's much if any thought process going on there at all, beyond what Fox News, Sarah Palin, and whatever Republican legislators from their state/districts have told them to spew. A lot of them even admit right there to the camera that they have no idea what's in the bill or what bothers them about it. I wonder how many of them are on or will be on Medicare/Medicaid. And I wonder how many of them have similarly marched against public education (Socialized Schooling!), mandatory auto insurance (Car Dictatorship!), and public funding of roads (Marxist Routing!), police dept. (Communist Gestapo!), and parks (Socialized Trees!). I'm guessing not many. Even the bigwig teabagger that told everyone to go smash windows over the weekend is on the public dole for disability - for what sounds like a lot of self-induced reasons.

Hilarious. All this noise is just a bunch of ignoramuses easily whipped up by the talking heads they listen to, mixed with a lot of sore-loserism, some racism, and little else. They had a tea-party gathering outside of town here last week, and they were apparently passing around pirate flags of Obama's face with a bullet hole in it.

Anyway, I'm impressed the interviewer managed to keep a straight face through all that. Still, I wonder if this guy interviewed anyone who had done some homework, or was he just cherry-picking dumbasses out of the crowd, Leno-style. I'd also like to know where he got his "2%" number for the tort reform argument. The closest I can think of is that is about the number of malpractice suits that end up going the patient's way. A statistic that is probably heavily influenced by the number of lawyers an insurance company can throw at a plaintiff. Then there's the number of extra costs and pointless extra tests and drugs doctors prescribe just to satisfy their malpractice requirements. And that's only treating it as a cost issue. Ordering all that extra stuff that the doc knows is unnecessary doesn't sound like good medicine to me, even if it were free. If you're just simply limiting the payout on a negligence case (Texas does this - guess who was responsible for that one?), then yeah, that would do almost no good. The definition needs to be expanded to all the things it impacts.

To everyone that agrees with the premise of the original post, i.e. resorting to violence to overthrow the government, I'd like you to look around the world and tell me just how often violence has worked in this day and age. If necessary I'll make a list of the disasters caused by such stupidity, but I'd prefer it if you learned about them on your own.

People that advocate violence have no place in a democratic society. People that see the world in black & white/good & evil terms have no place in a democratic society. And most importantly, people who ignore the TRUE will of the people have no place in ANY society.

The Tea Party and their ideological supporters do NOT speak for America no matter how many times the claim to do so. If you seriously consider throwing rocks through windows as a valid way of expressing your political desires, then you deserve to go to prison charged with a felony and therefore unable to vote in elections from that point on.

Control your anger and refocus it to useful ends. You also need to make sure that what you're angry about is actually happening the way that you think it is.
